The Makeup-Removing Multitasker

These micellar water products work overtime to remove stage makeup while giving your skin a hydrating boost.

BY MARISSA DESANTIS

Whether you're in class or onstage, chances are your daily routine ends with washing your face. But if all that sweating and cleansing is drying out your skin, consider switching to a micellar water. Popularized in France, micellar water doesn't require any rinsing, but it still leaves you fresh-faced.

"Micelles are clever cleansing bubbles that attract and lift makeup and impurities from your skin," explains Simple Skincare celebrity makeup artist Gita Bass. "Even on makeup-free days, it's an ideal choice for dancers since it removes sweat, dirt and oil without causing dryness and irritation," she says.

Use it while getting stage-ready by soaking a Q-tip in micellar water to clean up any eyeshadow or liner mistakes. And postshow, Bass adds, "it's great to go from performance to street when you want to keep your eye makeup but need a skin refresher." When removing heavy stage makeup, Bass recommends starting with a micellar makeup remover wipe, then the micellar water, and finishing with a micellar gel wash for a deep clean.

Calgon Hawaiian Ginger Moisturizing Bath Fizzies take you away!

There's nothing like a good soak after a long summer day - made even better when you throw in a Calgon Bath Fizzy - it improves circulation, soothes sore muscles and minor aches and pains away as well as detoxifies skin from all that sun! They come in a bunch of amazing scents but this is the one that screams summer to me:

Calgon Hawaiian Ginger Moisturizing Bath Fizzies - 8 x 60g - $7.99 - revitalize mind and body with a fragrant, moisturizing soak scented with the dazzle of island sunshine and the exhilarating rush of exotic fruit while delivering skin softening Vitamin E.

Of course nobody wants to take a hot bath in the summer and while after a long, hot day a cold bath may seem tempting but would be most unpleasant so stick with tepid water - it will actually cool you down better then a cold bath would!

Available at drugstores across Canada.

4. Do Something Relaxing Before Bed

One of the hardest things to do when I get in bed at night is shut my brain off. I am always thinking about how much I have to get done the next morning, what I should make for dinner and all the deadlines coming up. To help de-stress and calm your nerves after a busy day, try a relaxing activity like reading, exercise, meditation or listening to soothing music. I like to indulge in a little self-pampering by taking a long, hot bath with Dr. Teal's Pure Epsom Salt + Coconut Oil ($8.99 at drugstores nationwide). The rich minerals and nourishing oil helps ease muscle aches and soreness for a more restful sleep.

10 Tips to Improve Your Beauty Sleep

Today I am going to discuss sleep - a topic that many of us need to address for the benefit of our health and productivity. Life can get pretty chaotic, especially when trying to balance work and responsibilities with family life and leisure. I fall victim to this myself - staying up to write press features, going to bed at 4 am or dealing with terrible jet lag. Sometimes the culprit is weekend partying or binge-watching a new show, but whatever the reason, sleep and relaxation should be one of your top priorities - after all, they do call it "beauty rest."

Getting enough sleep is imperative to cognitive and behavioral functioning but it also has amazing benefits for your skin and well-being. Exhaustion can make your complexion appear dull, sallow and blemished with dark under eye circles and puffiness. You may also be more susceptible to viruses like the common cold.

During REM or deep sleep, the body fortifies immune resistance, heals and regenerates so today I am sharing a few tips and products to help improve your sleep quality.

SensatioNail Gel Polish & Express Gel Manicure Kit

I was traveling this month, and the last thing I wanted to worry about was, my nails. Keeping your nails picture perfect for two weeks is often a challenge, unless you get a professional manicure. Sadly, to say, I didn't have the time before I left to get to the salon, so I relied on my SensatioNail Express Gel Complete Manicure Kit. Unlike traditional gel manicures, that must be cured under a LED lamp for upwards of 20+ minutes, this system cures the polish in just 30 seconds. The kit contains everything you need for a flawless mani at home, and since it doesn't require a base or top coat, you'll have professional quality nails in half the time and at a fraction of the cost. The gel polish is pigmented enough that you only need a single coat, and it also provides an ultra-shiny finish that lasts for days without chipping or fading. I had no problem getting a solid 10+ days of wear-time out of it. It retails for $59.99 and each polish is sold individually for $13.

SensatioNail Express Gel Kit - Red Your Profile, Made Him Blush, Not My Nana's Pearls

The SensatioNail Express Gel formula is new to me. I've never tried these at-home gel kits with the lamps, but I always wanted to try them. Because I always do my nails at home. Sitting in a nail salon is not my thing. My first and last nail appointment was before my wedding 12 years ago. Don't get me wrong, my nails were gorgeous and better than I could ever do them myself. But it hurt. It took forever. And it just wasn't for me.

If my nails don't look professionally done, I'm okay with that. Maybe that's also down to me being a chronic nail biter for over twenty years and finally (most of the time) kicking that habit and I actually HAVE NAILS NOW. I just enjoy painting them myself and being able to change the color whenever I like (because I'm so freakin' indecisive in this department). And now we can get fancy gel nails at home? Count me the heck in.

I was sent the Complete Manicure Kit in Red Your Profile, as well as two Express Gel polishes in Made Him Blush and Not My Nana's Pearls. If you've interested in seeing these shades and hearing what I think about the collection, just keep reading!
